G. A. R. HELD INSTALLATION

Of Officers For the Ensuing Year Saturday Night.

THE STORIES OF '61

Were Told Around a Blazing Camp Fire Amid Roars of Laughter and Applause from All

THEN THEY ALL SAID GOOD-NIGHT

Saturday, January 11th, was a red letter day in the annals of Gregg Post. On the evening of that day the soldier boys of '61 held a public installation o the officers elected for the ensuing year. The ceremony of installation was conducted by General W. H. Green, department inspector, the officers installed were:

Commander—H. B. Pontius.
Sr. Vice Com—Isaac Thomas.
Jr. " " —Josep Alters.
Officers of the Day—Jno. I. Curtin.
Officers of Guard—Chas. Eckenroth.
Quarter-master—W. H. Musser.
Surgeon—John H. Bryan.
Chaplain—James Harris.
Patriotic Instructor—S. B. Miller.
Adjutant—Emannel Nolt.
Sergeant Major—Monroe Armor.

One of the features of the installation was a splendid supper prepared by the Ladies Auxiliary D. A. R. It was a feast fit for a king and needless to say it was highly enjoyed by all those present. Of course the supper was the first event of the evening, then came the installation, followed by a camp fire.

The camp fire was conducted by W. H. Musser and was participated in by a number of those present. Col. J. L. Spangler started this part of the program by throwing the first log on the fire, and was followed by Rev. Dr. Laurie. The remarks made by both these gentlemen received uproarious applause. Rev. Stein, Comrade Nelson, Life Chaplain of Post 261, W. H. Musser, Hon. Clement Dale, Rev. Platts, S. B. Miller and others kept the fire burning until a late hour. Many and varied were the interesting tales of war which these old comrades related as they told of the pleasures and the pains, the joys and aches, of the days when they fought for union.

There were many people present from this vicinity and from a distance. S. H. Bennison, and J. R. Pheasant, a member of Post 261 were among the visiting comrades. It was, taken altogether, a most successful affair and was heartily enjoyed by all present. After singing "America" and receiving a benediction from Rev. Platts the members and people present all departed for their home after an evening long to be remembered.

HORRIBLE SUICIDE COMMITTED.

Threw Himself Under Wheels of a Subway Train in a Crowded Station.

New York, Jan. 10.—Ill health and a nervous breakdown, brought on by worry over heavy losses in the market, are belived to be responsible for the suicide Thursday of William Bourne Nevin, ex-member of the New York stock exchange, who ended his life under the wheels of a subway train in the Seventy-ninth street station. Nevin jumped before a south-bound local just as it was pulling into the station, according to eye-witnesses, and was ground to pieces. His head was cut off and the body horribly mangled.

When Mrs. Nevin was called to identify the body, she became hysterical after being shown articles belonging to her husband. According to the wife Nevin was for a while a member of the brokerage firm of Hough, Taning & Co. but left it to go into business for himself. He was caught in the recent slump and lost heavily, even being forced to sell his seat on the exchange.

His wife thought he was going to the doctor when he left their house, No. 156 West Seventy-eighth street, Thursday.

There was large crowd on the station platform when Nevin plunged beneath the wheels. Women fainted and even men were almost overcome. Several persons standing near Nevin said there could be no doubt he jumped to the track.

A SENSATIONAL FIRE AT SCOTIA.

The Citizens of Scotia Were Alarmed Saturday Morning by a big Blaze.

Early Saturday the citizens of Scotia witness quite a large fire which caused an almost total loss of the ore works of that village. The blaze started about 6.30 this morning and was first noticed by a man who went to the tipple to build his morning fire in the stove at that place. The cause of the fire is unknown.

The fire spread rapidly wipeing out all works but the boiler house. They had nothing of much importance to use in extinguishing the blaze and this is one reason why the fire caused such a big loss to the company. One consoling thing is that the loss is partly covered by insurance and Mr. Rankin went to look after the insurance matter at once.

The buildings which were burned were the tipple, the washer house, and the jig house. The firm had been making some repairs and had just about completed them when the blaze undid it all.

This fire has thrown many persons out of employment and at present it is not known whether the firm will rebuild or not. It is probable however that they will fix things up and start work again in the near future. This was one of the largest fires the people of Scotia have had and up until the time we went to press the total loss was not known, yet we can say with certainty that it was pretty large as a large amount of valuable machinery was destroyed.

Death of Salina Kane.

The angel of death entered the home of Mrs. Salina Kane on Saturday afternoon and took Mrs. Kane away from her worldly pains. Deceased was a resident of this vicinity ever since a child of about 11 years and during the last 4 or 5 years lived in Bellefonte. She was born at Flemington, Clinton county, on November 12th, 1832 and her parents moved to Centre county about 1849. She was a faithful member of the Catholic church, and was married at that church many years ago to Michael Kane, who died in 1880. Her death was caused by pneumonia, and came after only five days suffering on Saturday afternoon at 2.30 p. m.

Left to survive her are four brothers and one sister as follows: Martin Kane and Edward Kane, both of Bellefonte; Thos. Kane, and Chas. Kane both of Philadelphia; and Mrs. R. B. Montgomery of Bellefonte. The funeral services were held at the Catholic church on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. Father McArdle officiating. Interment were made in the Catholic cemetery.

An Agreeable Surprise.

Last Saturday marked the eleventh birthday of Miss Eleanor Parker, the interesting little daughter of conductor Rose Parker. One of the pleasant things done in her honor on that day was a well planned surprise party given at the home of her grand-parents Mr. and Mrs. James Schofield, of Thomas street. There were fifteen of Eleanor's friends present and they all had a good time from 6 30 until 9 30 when they dispersed. One of the features of the party was an enjoyable luncheon. Everything was so well executed that it proved a complete surprise to Eleanor.

Among the many and handsome gifts which she received was a beautiful ring from her aunt, Emily Parker, of Somerset, and a valuable silver spoon from her grand-mother, Mrs. James Schofield. The ring received from her aunt was set with six sparkling diamonds. Gifts poured in, in almost endless profusion, and thus amid the splendor and joy of an evening happily spent with her friends the tenth year of Miss Eleanor Parker, sped away, and the beginning of a new year was launched.

Local Talent.

Next Monday and Tuesday evening Max C. Elliot and Miss Mabel Ellisley, theatrical producers, will present in the opera house for the first time in a good long while, the sensational melo drama entitled, "A Ragged Hero," for the sole benefit of the local G. A. R, and Co. B. Among the head-lines in the cast are Miss Elizabeth Youghly, Miss Betty Heinle, Russell Blair, Mr. Curtin and others. The play is in 4 acts with startling climaxes and plenty of good wholesome comedy. The producers have so arranged it, that between acts other local people will appear in high class vaudeville. Prices for the attraction 25, 35 and 50 cents. Seats on sale by members of G, A. R.

STATEMENT OF TRADE

Money Easier and More Plentiful--Industry Curtailed.

CLEARINGS BELOW 1907

Banks on a Currency Basis. Trade Quiet Prices of Commodities Easing.

MANY ARE OUT OF EMPLOYMENT.

Financial affairs show further and marked improvement and money is more plentiful and easier to obtain, but the gain in trade and industry proper is still largely one of sentiment, because business is quiet the country over railway earnings and bank clearings are below a year ago, collections are slow, though better than a month ago, and industry is, as a whole on short time, with the larger centers reporting a great number of unemployed.

In trade lines the general report is one of backward business. Mild weather is still a bar to the widest activities in seasonable goods north and west, and retailers are stimulating lagging demand by reduction sales, and southern trade shows little more life than a week ago. Jobbers report trade quiet and merchants disposed to reduce stocks rather than anticipate requirements. Some lines report after holiday collections as better than those of December, and in some cases better than anticipated, but they in few cases are better than slow to fair. Some events of the week in dry-goods lines are of special interest. One is the announcement of revised quotations for prints and sheetings by leading agents the reductions varying, but being of considerable volume. As to cancellations on spring business hitherto booked there are irregular reports received Another item is that some converters who have overbought gray goods are canceling and paying something for releases from contracts. In the woolen goods line the feature is the opening of woolens for the fall of 1908 at slight reductions from the proceding season. Wool is quiet but steady, except where offerings of off grades induce concessions.

Features in the financial situation are the perceptibly easier tone of money, the increased anxiety of lenders to place money with commercial borrowers at prevailing rates and the coming back to a currency basis of practically all of the country's banks. First fruits of this are found in evidences of renewed interest in stock speculation, an enlarged call for bonds, and the rumors that a number of new issues are in prospect to redeem maturing short term notes while others are to provide for expenditures not hitherto possible. Bank clearings returns, however, reflecting past transactions, are below a year ago; latest obtainable railway returns, those for December, point to a decrease of 13 per cent, from the same month of the year preceding, and the after holiday crop of business failures is this year fuller than usual, this week's total being the largest at this date for a decade past.

A Milesburg Lady Creates Excitement in Bellefonte Saturday.

On Saturday afternoon Miss Viola Teller of Milesburg, created considerable excitement by actions which suggest mental weakness, and as a result she is prisoner at Fort Kline. It seems that some time ago she purchased an automobile and had it shipped to Milesburg, There was a freight charge of $18.00 which she refused to pay and she attempted to replevin the machine but the matter is still pending in the courts. On Saturday she went to a house in this city and demanded from a lady a large sum of money variously stated at from $4000 to $4,000,000. It is alleged she threatened the life of the lady if the money was not forthcoming. Miss Teller was finally arrested and taken before Squire Keichline, who committed her to jail. When her satchel was searched they found a loaded revolver and about a dozen cartridges.

Miss Teller is an agent for pianos and sewing machines and is well known in this vicinity.

The Academy Won.

The Bellefonte Academy basket ball team won a hard fought contest from the Williamsport High School five Friday evening in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium by the close score of 30-28.

The large crowd in attendance was kept in a continuous state of excitement from start to finish. The first half closed with the Academy leading by the small margin of two points. Both teams entered the second half with a spirit of determination that produced the most sensational kind of playing. When the time for the second half expired both teams had scored 28 points. They then played extra time until the first two points would be scored which should decide the contest. Clyde Oberlin in the first minute threw a beautiful goal from the middle of the floor and was carried about on the shoulders of his school fellows for winning the game. Every player on the floor did good work and Charles Barnes is to be congratulated for his very satisfactory work as referee.

Received a Promotion.

Nelson E. Robb, who has held the position of district manager of the American Union Telephone Company for the counties of Blair, Centre, Huntingdon, Cambria, Indiana, Clearfield, Jefferson, Elk, McKean and Cattaragus county, N. Y., for several years, has been promoted to the position of superintendent of contracts, with head-quarters at Harrisburg. Mr. Robb assumed his new position this week and with his elevation comes a handsome increase in salary. He is regarded as one of the brightest men in the telephone business and his many friends will be glad to hear of his advancement.

THE DREAD ANGEL OF DEATH

Enters the Home of a Prominent Citizen of Lemont.

ON TUESDAY MORNING

He Took Ill on Monday Evening at 8:30 and Just About 11 Hours Later Was Dead.

HIS DEATH WAS DUE TO APOPLEXY

The dread Angel of Death made his appearance in Lemont on Tuesday morning and took from that community one of its most prominent and widely known citizens in the person of Dr. J. Y. Dale.

Dr. Dale was born at the old homestead at Dales' Mills, October 31, 1840 As a boy he assisted his father in the duties on the farm and in the mills. He attended the public schools of that neighborhood, the Boalsburg Academy, and later became associated with Dr. Benjamin J. Berry, a graduate of the University of New York, and one of the best practicing physicians in that vicinity at that time. Still later he took a course of study in the Medical Department of the University of Pennsylvania graduating in 1863. While a medical student he received some valuable experience in the military hospital at Philadelphia and Pittsburg.

In April, 1863, he located with Dr. E. Greene, at Bellefonte, to engage in practice. From this time on he rose rapidly in the estimation of the citizens of this county and a little more than a year later he went to Lemont and became actively engaged in the pursuits of his chosen profession. Here, amid the scenes of his childhood and surrounded by his friends of the days gone by Dr. Dale at once rose into eminence and prosperity. Here he lived and died, holding his old friends and making many new ones, not only in that vicinity but far and wide, who now mourn his death.

Deceased was married to Miss Matilda Allport, of Philipsburg, on September 29, 1870. To this happy union the following sons and daughters were born: Frederick, David, Katharine and Edith. The family are members of the Episcopal church.

Dr. Dale was professor of Anatomy and Physiology and lecturer on Hygeine at State College 1867-71; a member of the American Medical Association, of the State Medical Society of Pennsylvania, of the Centre County Medical Society; of the Clinton County Medical Society and of the West Branch Medical Association. He was also Deputy Inspector for the State Board of Health, a member of the Shakespeare Society of New York, of the State College Scientific Association, was a Free Mason, and connected with the Blue Lodge Chapter and Commandery of this town. Last of all but not least Dr. Dale was a staunch, active Republican.

The incidents surrounding the death of Dr. Dale are very sad. He left on Monday evening for State College and after treating some patients at that town departed for his home in Lemont. He was driving home when he had a stroke, which rendered him unconscious, and the horse took him home. He grew worse until finally death came on Tuesday morning at about 9:30. Death was caused by apoplexy and came very suddenly. Left to survive him are his wife, the two sons and two daughters already mentioned.

The dead body of Dr. Dale will be sent to Pittsburg to be cremated. The ashes will then be returned to be buried in the cemetery at the Branch. The funeral will be private.

The Lock Wouldn't Work.

On Wednesday afternoon, when a certain gentleman tried to open the door of the Brockerhoff omnibus he found that he could not get the lock to work, Jim Miller came to his assistance but was of no avail and then Christ Beezer tried the lock in dead earnest. Well Christ fixed the lock alright, but he couldn't get the door open. About this time the gentleman in the bus commenced to get excited and was going to batter the door down, but Christ cautioned him not to. He was then permitted to crawl through an open window in the front of the bus, after which the bus was taken away and the back was repaired.

DEATH OF GEORGE BRANDON.

A Man Well Known in This Vicinity Goes to His Reward Beyond.

George Brandon, well and favorably known in Bellefonte, died Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock at his home in Honesdale, Wayne county, where he was keeping hotel. He had been suffering from asthma which finally caused his death. He was about 62 years of age and at one time a very active man. He has hosts of friends who will be sorry to hear of his death. Thirteen years ago he was the proprietor of the Brockerhoff House, Bellefonte, in which year he was married the second time to Mrs. Lucy Patterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Shaak, and sister of Mrs. Frank Naginey and Mrs. C. D. Kryder. They remained here a year or so afterwards when they moved to Spangler, Cambria county where he took charge of a new hotel. He afterwards moved to Carlisle where for years he was proprietor of a large hotel. Several years ago he sold out in Carlisle and he and his family came to Bellefonte where they remained for some time. He finally went to Honesdale where he became proprietor of the best hotel in the town. He is survived by a wife and two children: Prof. George Brandon, of Scranton; and Winifred Brandon, the latter being the child of the second wife. Frank Naginey left Wednesday morning for Honesdale.

MISS PETTICOATS.

Was Presented to a Large and Well Pleased House.

Wednesday evening the theatre goers were presented with that great play of human interest, Miss Petticoats. Many went to see this play and among them were some severe critics. Practically everybody liked the manner in which the play was portrayed. The scenic part of the production was fine and the scores were all stars. In so many of the shows of this character there is but one real good player, the star, but in Miss Petticoats it was different. Here they all played like stars, even the minor characters bringing their parts before the eyes of the spectators with notable effectiveness. Another noticeable fact was the costumes, which were chosen in such a manner as to greatly enhance the beauty and value of the play.

Summing it all up Miss Petticoats is one of the best shows we have had this season and the management of the opera house deserve our congratulations for having been able to secure this play.

Galeton Girl's Escapade Full of Excitement.

Elmira, Jan. 14.—Mary Marrone, a fifteen-year-old Italian girl whose home is in Galeton, Pa., and Luigi Cellalo, an Italian aged about thirty with whom the girl had fallen in love and eloped, were arrested here Saturday and held for disposition at the instance of the girl's father, who offered $100 reward for the captnre of his eloping daughter and her lover. The girl first went to Addison, N. Y., the following day returning to Ansonia, Pa., where she was met by Cellalo. The following day they came to Elmira. After her arrival here she had a strenuous time of it. During her brief stay in the city she has seen a bit of the world which few experience in a life time. Among her exciting movements has been her secretion by her lover, and offer of $100 reward for her return to her father, stolen, bound and gagged by the Black Hand, taken away from her lover and held for ransom, later recovered, again secreted by her lover from the police who searched for her and finally taken into custody and held at police headquarters until her father's arrival. Luigi Cellalo is also in a steel cell at the city hall and may be charged with kidnapping or criminal assault.

A Daring Act.

Joseph Maschke, a popular member of the clerical force in the post office, has the honor of being the first pedestrian to cross the new overhead bridge, now under construction, spanning the main line tracks at the depot. He had a thrilling experience picking his way across the joists. He was breathlessly watched by the employees of the Wilson Chemical and McClintock & Musser's establishments and was heartily cheered on arriving safely at the other side. Talk about Eliza in her dash across the cakes of ice! She wasn't in it with Joe. He was busy Monday receiving congratulations on his daring feat, which he very modestly acknowledges. Tyrone Herald, Jan. 13.

THAW JURY COMPLETED

Twelfth Man Secured Late Friday and all are Sworn

CASE TO BE PRESENTED

By the Prosecution on Monday to Which Date the Court Has Adjourned

THE HOURS OF SESSION ARE FIXED

New York, January 10.—The second jury to try Harry K. Thaw, for the killing of Stanford White, was completed late today, and on Monday morning the prosecution will present its case against the defendant. Five jurors in all were accepted and sworn at the morning and afternoon sessions held today. As a whole the jury is made up of a most intelligent body of business men, most of whom are at middle age or over. When the panel had finally been completed, after many vexatious delays and after the exercise of twenty-three peremptory challenges by the defense and twenty by the people. Thaw announced that he was entirely satisfied, and in fact well pleased with the twelve men chosen. Young Mrs. Thaw, who has watched the selection of the jurors with the keenest interest, also declared that she was well satisfied.

"They are much nicer than the men selected last year," she said, as court adjourned, and Thaw exclaimed that he echoed his wife's sentiment. The prisoner and his wife had an earnest five minutes talk after the last juror had been sworn, and while the attorneys were confering as to the appointment of a commission which will be sent to Pittsburg to take the testimony of Mrs. Wm. Thaw, the mother who is still too ill to come to New York.

The last two seats in the jury box were especially hard to fill and a number of talesmen were passed temporarily into these places only to be excused in a few minutes by challenges from both defense, and prosecution. Justice Dowling announced at the beginning of today's sessions that, beginning with Monday, the court hours would be from 10 a. m., to 1 p. m., and from 2 p. m., to 6 p. m. Afterwards at the request of the attorneys, he fixed the hour of adjournment at 5 o'clock instead of 6 o'clock.

Assistant District Attorney Francis P. Garvan will make the opening statement for the prosecution, as he did at the first trial. He will not consume more than ten minutes, and it is said that the state direct witnesses will not occupy more than two hours. The defense will open Monday afternoon, Martin W. Littleton, Thaw's new chief counsel, making the opening statement.

A Bear Under Fire.

One April morning four years ago George Pardee went over to Black Creek fishing, and for company he took along a 22 caliber repeating rifle. He was swinging his birch pole with more or less success when he looked over across the creek into the lot and there saw a bear about eight rods distant walking diagonally away. George dropped his pole and began to work the lever of his rifle. Still the bear swung along with his nose straight ahead, apparently unconscious of the presence of a man within a mile. Few men in the Adirondacks can shoot so fast that one must pay strict attention to be able to count the shots; but the "sassiness" of the bear caused George to shoot more deliberately. He says he is certain that he hit the beast several times. Yet he walked straight on in the same unconcerned manner. "Most likely the bullets didn't go through his hide, though," said George. The bear disappeared in a clump of bushes which grew on the brow of a hollow. George on his side of the creek, ran to the top of a little hill. Arriving there he saw the bear headed straight away on a dead run. The previous unconcern of the bear and his sudden change as soon as he got out of sight is a thing of wonder to George to this day.

Merely Overlooked.

The ways of the crank with an invention are unaccountable. Here is a recent actual example. A brisk, eager individual called on a capitalist for the purpose of interesting him in a device for discouraging burglars.

"I want to get the idea patented," he said, "and I haven't any money. I'm willing to go halves with any man that will give me the financial backing.

"My scheme is this. You first make your doors and windows secure, so that they can't be opened at all from the outside. There are plenty of devices for doing that nowadays. Make all of them tight and fast, except one. Leave that one so that it will open easily. Then run a wire from that window to the head of your bed, where you have an alarm bell. The burglar comes along, tries the doors and windows, and when he comes to that one he raises it. The alarm goes off, and the burglar hears it and flees, or it wakes you up, and you are ready for him. In either case it accomplishes your purpose."

"But," said the capitalist, "if you can make all the doors and windows fast except one, why not make that one secure, too, and thus keep the burglar out entirely?"

"I never thought of that?" replied the inventor, rubbing his jaw.

He didn't get the money.

The "Language" of Animals.

Huxley thought that because of the absence of language the brutes can have no trains of thought, but only trains of feeling, and this is the opinion of most comparative psychologists. I am myself quite ready to admit that the lower animals come as near to reasoning as they come to having a language. Their various cries and calls—the call of the mate, to the young, the cry of anger, of fear, of alarm, of pain, of joy—do serve as the medium of some sort of communication, but they do not stand for ideas or mental concepts any more than the various cries of a child do. They are the result of simple reactions to outward objects or to inward wants and do not imply any mental process whatever. A grown person may utter a cry of pain or fear or pleasure with a mind utterly blank of any ideas. Once on a moonlight night I lay in wait for some boy poachers in my vineyard. As I suddenly rose up, clad in a long black cloak, and rushed for one and seized his leg as he was hastening over the fence he uttered a wild, agonized scream precisely as a wild animal does when suddenly seized. He told me afterward he was simply frightened out of his wits. For the moment he was simply an unreasoning animal.—John Burroughs in Outing Magazine.

Didn't Blame It.

Not long ago a certain farmer, well known for his violent temper, sued a local horse dealer in the county court. He had bought a horse, which the dealer had guaranteed to be "quiet to ride and drive," and he now sought to recover the amount paid for the animal.

In stating his case Farmer Hothead lost his temper more than once and had to be frequently admonished by the judge.

One of the witnesses for the defense, a former owner of the horse in question, declared that the animal was "absolutely without vice."

"As against that," observed the judge, "Farmer Hothead asserts that the animal is vicious — that it ran away and smashed his trap to splinters."

"Well," said the witness, "I wouldn't have believed that he would have run away from anybody, but after what I've seen of the plaintiff today I think it likely he did run away—and 'ang me if I can blame the 'oss! It wasn't vice, though. It was a happy instinct."—London Answers.

A Considerate Thief.

Judging from the recent experience of a humble reporter, it would appear as if there is a certain amount of chivalry even among those despised specimens of humanity commonly known as sneak thieves. It was on a frosty night that the newspaper man, becoming suddenly possessed of an economical streak, entered one of those cheap restaurants so numerous in New York. He wore a long overcoat, which, by the way, was in excellent condition. There was little of consequence in the pockets of the garment save an important letter, stamped and addressed, all ready to mail. The coat was carefully hung up by its owner and a little later as carefully removed by its new owner. The latter neglected to leave anything in exchange; but, being possessed of either a grim sense of humor or else overtaken by a twinge of remorse, he most considerately mailed the letter, which reached its destination in good order the following morning.—New York Tribune.

Hadn't Seen Any.

"So you don't take any stock in all this criticism of our ten dollar gold pieces?"

"None whatever," answered the young man who has read law. "In my case it's mere hearsay evidence."—Washington Star.

Outwitting Her Lawyer.

"Still, there are occasions when a lawyer isn't the chief beneficiary of a suit," said Mrs. Stonewall Jackson. "I know of one instance. A friend of mine in Virginia sued a railroad company for damages and secured a verdict for $50,000, which was paid, and the whole amount is now in bank subject to her order. Her counsel didn't get a penny of it."

"How was that?"

"She found the only way of outwitting him—she married the lawyer."

RAILROAD IN RECEIVERS' HAND

An Inability to Extend Loans Causes Big Failure.

NOW OWES $10,653,413

The Directors and British Creditors Join in Proceeding the United States Court.

CHICAGO GREAT WESTERN RAILROAD

St. Paul. Jan. 9.—Judge Walter H Sanborn, of the United States Circuit Court, Wednesday afternoon appointed A. B. Stickney and Charles H. F. Smith both of St. Paul, receivers for the Chicago Great Western Railroad, Mr. Stickney is now president of the road. Kellogg and Severance, of St. Paul, were appointed attorneys for the receiver.

This action followed the inability of the company to secure an extension of obligations due in 1908.

During the last ten years the road has spent $19,000,000 in reconstruction.

The petition for a receivership was filed on behalf of the stockholders and the Finance Committee, by John A. Humberg, of Minnesota; George P. Meyer, of New York, and Ward Cummings and Alexander Wallace, of Great Britain.

Attorney Frank B. Kellogg, of St. Paul, made a statement to the court covering the grounds on which a receivership was asked. An answer was filed at once on behalf of the Board of Directors, who Wednesday afternoon voted to become a party to the receivership proceedings.

Mr. Kellogg said that the capital of the railroad consists of four classes of stock, but two of which need be considered in the proceedings. These are the preferred "A" and the debenture stock, each of which represented 50 per cent. of the original first mortgage bonds.

The preferences of these stocks are secured by a trust deed to the Manhattan Trust Company, of New York. There will be a default in the payment of these obligations January 15, said Mr. Kellogg. Mr. Kellogg said that the Great Western also owes $10,653,418.71 now due or falling due within the next four years, of which notes to the amount of $545,000 have gone to protest.

Be a Gentlemen.

Some fellows don't know how to behave when they are in public places. This fact was clearly demonstrated when some gentlemen (?) in the gallery at the opera house boldly spat tobacco spit on those below. Now if a fellow would get caught at such a trick, I don't think he would care to try it again soon, and if you are one of the fellows that try to make things unpleasant for others please take a kind hint and stop it. You will never rue it. Just on the spur of the moment it may seem smart and may appear very funny to those who look on, but to the victim it certainly means some thing undesirable. If you have respect for yourself and for those around young man, never play mean, hateful tricks nor do things which will cause other people trouble and not bring any good results to you.

A Theatening Letter.

A threatening and mysterious letter was received recently by our genial townsman, Mr. D. I. Willard, (local address.) It is written on a crumpled sheet of paper and dated "Somewhere Nearby County." The writer, who signs himself "Jack the Smasher," threatened to do something dire when he reaches Willard's Bazaar. He adds, however, that no one will be sorry.

Mr. Willard says he has no idea who the writer can be, but he has pasted the letter up in his store window, where any one can examine it for himself. He does not look especially worried about it, and stated that he thought he would not turn it over to the authorities, but would wait and see what happened.

Pennsylvania Greatest in the World

The Pennsylvania State Sabbath School Association is an incorporated body formed for the purpose of uniting Christian workers of all denominations in efforts to improve the Sunday schools of Pennsylvania by elevating their standards and increasing their efficiency through better methods of teaching and management. Auxiliary to this incorporated body are sixty-seven County Associations. Through these auxiliary Associations the State Association reaches individual schools. The statistical report shows Pennsylvania to be the greatest Sunday school territory in the world. Within our boarders are 12,000 Sunday schools directed by 169,554 officers and teachers, representing all denominations, with a total membership of 1,682,497.

KEPT HER PROMISE.

She Wasn't Much of a Politician, but She Was Truthful.

Mrs. Eliot sighed so deeply as she took out her hatpins that her husband looked up from the evening paper. "I don't believe I've any bent for politics," she said in response to his inquiring glance. "Every time there's an election of officers of the club I get into some kind of mess, try as I may to avoid it.

"You see, Harry," she continued confidingly, "I don't really care a fig who is in office so long as I'm not. I like all the members very well, and I'd as lief have one as another president or secretary or on committees.

"I have no favorites. I'm truly impartial. But that won't work. If you belong to a woman's club you are forced to sweat and agonize over candidates. You must be partisan or be out with both sides.

"You know Mrs. George has been president for four years, and every year Mrs. Tufts has tried to get Mrs. George out and herself in. About a week ago she came to me and said she was sure of the nomination if I would vote for her. Would I? I thought it over and said I would, for I admire Mrs. Tufts immensely, she is so lovely and charitable.

"Today, just before balloting, Edith Reynolds came to me and said I must vote for Mrs. George. Edith said I owed it to her—you know she helped me make over my blue foulard and canned all those peaches for me when cook burned her hand.

"Everybody wanted Mrs. George, Edith said, and if I voted for her she would get the nomination. I thought it over and said I would vote for her. I admire and respect her very much. She is so witty and forcible when she presides, and she speaks French beautifully, and I thought if everybody wanted her it was only proper that"—

"Do you mean that you promised to vote for both?" interrupted Mr. Eliot.

"Yes; I promised Mrs. Tufts, as I have just said, and I promised Edith because"—

"But you didn't actually vote for both."

"Why, of course I did, Harry. I may not be much of a politician, but I was brought up to keep my word," said Mrs. Eliot, with dignity.—Youth's Companion.

LINEN FOR EVERYBODY SOON.

New Process Will Make It Almost as Cheap as Cotton.

Good news for the American woman is contained in the announcement that the coming of linens at prices little higher than the cost of fine cottons is at hand.

Because the process of transforming flax straw into linen is so laborious and takes so much time by old world methods the work cannot be done in the United States at the higher cost of labor prevailing here. Before the flax stalk becomes a handkerchief or a tablecloth it has been weighted down in water to disintegrate the fiber from its woody envelope. Then it is stacked in piles to dry and rot. Then follow the combing of the fiber by hand and the bleaching, which involves some twenty odd separate operations. Altogether, the peasant labor of Belgium, Russia and other, European countries take from sixteen to thirty weeks to do this work. No wonder linen is expensive.

To a Massachusetts inventor is due the credit for perfecting a combined mechanical and chemical process that produces linen fiber ready for spinning in twelve hours. Think what this means in lowering the cost of shirt waists, napery, bed linen and everything that everybody would rather have made of linen if the cost were not prohibitive.

Flax straw costs less than a third as much as cotton, so there never has been any reason why linen should not be cheap if a way could be found to get the fiber from the straw by the use of machinery that would save time and labor and chemicals that would remove the flax gums and make the fiber ready for spinning. Confidence that this has been done is shown in the erection of mills in Massachusetts and Vermont that will operate under the new Oxford linen making process. Textile experts can see no further obstacle to the establishment of the industry here on a foundation that promises linens at prices within everybody's reach. Of course the profits of the mill owners will be enormous, but the American woman will not complain if linen prices are reduced, say, 33 per cent, which is well within the realm of possibility.

A Sure Remedy.

His sleep had been disturbed nightly by the howling on his own back fence of his neighbor's cat. At last in despair he consulted his lawyer.

"There sits the cat every night on our fence," he explained, "and he yowls and yowls and yowls. Now, I don't want to have any trouble with this neighbor, and I want you to suggest a remedy. I am well within my rights if I shoot the cat, am I not?"

"I would hardly say that," replied the legal light. "The cat does not belong to you, as I understand it."

"No."

"And the fence does?"

"Yes."

"Then I think it safe to say that you have a perfect right to tear down the fence."—Lippincott's.

SALVATION ARMIES AT WAR.

Booth's Organization Seeks to Prevent American Host Using Name.

New York, Jan. 11.—Whether the Salvation Army, of which General William Booth is the head, has the exclusive right to use that name in the United States was argued Tuesday in the Supreme Court on an application to make permanent an injunction restraining the American Salvation Army from using that name.

General James William Duffin, head of the American Salvation Army, alleges that he was forced to leave Brooklyn last summer after he had been arrested on a charge of vagrancy.

D. Cady Herron appeared for General Booth's body. He asserted that the defendants solicited contributions in the name of the Salvation Army of the United States, and did many things to stimulate the appearance and character of the plaintiffs.

Wilson Lee Cannon, counsel of the defendants, argued that his organization had a right to the name it uses, asserting that the American Salvation Army was incorporated in 1896 and the Salvation Army of the United States not till 1899, although Booth's army had been working in this country since 1878.

"We were incorporated under that name in Dauphin county, Pennsylvania, and later in the county of Philadelphia" he said. "We are the senior corporation. We are proud of our name and use it."

Remarkable Twins.

Worthington, Armstrong county, the town of the famous Peter Graff & Co.'s Woolen Mill, has the most unique pair of twins, perhaps, in the world. They are Nevin and William Kerr, born in Scotland in August, 1815, the year the battle of Waterloo was fought. They live together, doing their own housework, and appear to be in good health, considering that they are in their ninety third year, and still take an active interest in life. Just at present they are engaged in building a sidewalk in front of their property in town that looks as though it ought to last as long as the pyramids. It is being constructed of sandstone blocks of about the size and thickness commonly used for street curbing, and the "boys" are doing the work themselves.

When the Kerr boys were born George IV was king of Great Britain and James Monroe was president of the United States. They were 17 years old when Walter Scott died, and were contemporaneous with Edmund Cartwright, the inventor of the power loom. They have seen the United States develop into a great nation, and the progress in science and invention since they became residents of this country, about 73 years ago, has been nothing less than marvelous.

Occasionally the twins get sick, and, living alone as they do, and having little faith in drugs and medicines, some of the good neighbors have to turn in and act as house-keeper and trained nurse. Hence they are fortunate in living in a cultured community, where the people are self-sacrificing and kind, and take a neighborly interest in each other's welfare.

Nothing in the Paper Today.

Frequently you pick up one of the local papers, and after glancing at the head-lines, wearily thrust it aside, remarking: "Nothing in the paper today." Did you ever stop to think what the phrase—"nothing in the paper today"—means? It means that in the day just passed that no misfortune has befallen one in our town, that no fire has wiped out a neighbor's worldly goods, that the grim angel of death has crossed no threshold of a friend, that no poor devil, haunted by the past or the misdeed of some other, has crossed the divide by his own hand, that many things that ought not to happen have not happened. So the next time you pick up a paper that doesn't announce a tragedy, give a little thanks instead of grumbling because there is no news.

Take Notice!

Expert accountants have testified that, for the year 1907, The New York World is the FIRST in circulation gains and FIRST in the number of advertisements printed. During 1907 The World sold 80,690,339 MORE copies than in '06, and it printed a total of 1,405,032 separate advertisements—292,247 MORE than the New York Herald, the next highest newspaper.

It is worthy of notice also that The World was the only New York newspaper to show an advertising gain in 1907—all the other New York newspapers losing.

WAY FOUND TO MAKE LINENS IN AMERICA.

Introduction of an Industry That Opens a New Market For Farmers and Will Add Millions to Textile Production.

Another revolution, textile experts say, is due to occur in the fabric making industry of the United States. Heretofore, owing to the high cost of labor in America, it has been impossible to manufacture our linens at home. American farmers raise millions of tons of flax, but only for the seed. The straw from which linen is made is burned.

Now a Massachusetts inventor has perfected a method of transforming flax straw into linen fiber that is commercially practicable under the labor conditions prevailing in the United States. From sixteen to thirty weeks are required by old world methods to accomplish what the process now controlled by the Oxford linen mills performs in twelve hours.

The initial process of linen making abroad is to weight down the flax straw in water until the woody "shive" is rotted away from the fiber. The "scutching" and combing of the straw that follow are done by hand. All of this work can now be done in twelve hours by machines which loosen the fiber from the straw and prepare it for the chemical baths that remove the gums and oils and bleach the fiber ready for spinning. At a recent demonstration for the benefit of representatives of the press and others especially interested these chemical processes were actually accomplished in a space of thirty-five minutes.

The best of the European methods secures about 170 pounds of fiber from a thousand pounds of straw and sacrifices the seed crop. By the Mudge process 250 pounds of fiber are obtained from the same amount of straw after the seed has been saved. The new process also preserves the shive for paper making and the tow, which has many profitable uses, including the manufacture of surgical bandages, machinery waste, etc.

Now Burn Millions of Tons of Flax.

A late bulletin of the department of agriculture says that "millions of tons of straw are burned every year, most of which in quality and length for the production of fiber far excels the average straw from which the Russian peasant makes the fiber which chiefly supplies the linen fabrics of the world. Not only is a new market now opened up for the farmer, but for the first time linens can be turned out on a commercially profitable basis, and in Massachusetts and Vermont mills are already being equipped to produce linens made in America."

Eventually the $22,000,000 a year that we now send abroad for linen will be kept at home, and linens need not any longer be a luxury. The Oxford processes provide a means for utilizing a raw material which costs less than one-third as much as cotton, but which in the finished product sells for many times as much.

Even without the present tariff on linens they could not be manufactured by old world methods in successful competition with the new process, and the establishment of the industry here begins with a prospect of adding enormously to the total of cotton fabric production, now valued at half a billion dollars a year.

THE NEWSBOYS' PIE.

It Took Man Who Looked Like Bingham to Find It.

Tramp! Tramp! Tramp! Two hundred and fifty pairs of little feet, keeping step, are marching to dinner in the New York newsboys' lodging house. Five hundred pairs more are restlessly awaiting their turn upstairs. In prison, hospital and almshouse the great city is host and gives of her plenty. Here an unknown friend has spread a generous repast for the waifs who all the rest of the days shift for themselves as best they can—turkey, coffee and pie, with vegetables to fill in. As the file of eagle eyed youngsters passes down the long tables there are swift movements of grimy hands, and shirt waists bulge, ragged coats sag at the pockets. Hardly is the file seated when the plaint rises: "I ain't got no pie! It got swiped on me!" Seven despoiled ones hold up their hands.

The superintendent laughs—it is Christmas eve. He taps one tentatively on the bulging shirt. "What have you here, my lad?"

"Me pie," responds he, with an innocent look. "I was scart it would get stole."

A little fellow who has been eying one of the visitors attentively takes his knife out of his mouth and points it at him with conviction.

"I know you," he pipes. "You're a p'lice commissioner. I seen yer picture in the papers. You're Bingham!"

The clatter of knives and forks ceases suddenly. Seven pies creep stealthily over the edge of the table and are replaced on as many plates. The visitors laugh. It was a case of mistaken identity.—Century

Where Bells Ring Underground.

Near Raleigh, in Nottinghamshire, England, there is a valley said to have been caused by an earthquake several hundreds of years ago, and it is now usual on Christmas morning for old men and women to tell their children and young friends to go to the valley, stoop down and hear the bells ringing merrily in the ruins of the church under the ground.—Tit-Bits.

Forecast for 1908.

Lee J. Spangler, the York forecaster and horoscope, sees the events in the world for 1908 darkly. Mr. Spangler claims credit for predicting the Baltimore fire, the San Francisco earthquake and the McKinley assassination.

The following is his latest bulletin:

The end of the world. This world will come to an end in winter, in the end of the month of December, on a Sunday, in the year 1908. Heaven and earth shall pass away. Nineteen hundred and eight will be a year of trouble such as was never known before.

Nation shall rise against nation.

Kingdom shall rise against kingdom.

There shall be famines and pestilences and earthquakes.

Rivers will dry up.

The fish of the sea will die.

The sea will boil up with a great noise.

The cities of the nations will fall

Mountains will pass away.

Islands will pass away.

The city of Boston will sink.

New York will go up in smoke.

People will flee to the mountains.

The land will dry up to get ready for fire.

The crops will fail and prosperity will be cut off.

The banks will keep on failing. This cannot be stopped.

Roosevelt will get rid of all his money.

The treasury will go dry.

People will carry their money in their pockets and hide it in their houses.

Families will steal it from one another. This is the gold that is piled up for the last days. This gold will rust in your pockets. It will give you more trouble than good.

Labor organizations will come under one head and rule the land.

There will be great wrath among the people. Hatred, killing one another, hanging themselves, and children will rise against their parents, two against three and three against two. mother-in-law against daughter-in-law.

All plagues that are written in the Bible will be brought forth. The land will be full of lice, frogs, crickets and locusts. Whoeever will be stung of these locusts will die.

There will be signs in the sun, in the moon and in the stars.

In the end of time the sun will be black and the land will be in darkness. The moon will be as blood, the stars will fall, and the heavens will be shaken. The coming summer and fall the lecet, the Saints, will be gathered together. "For unto Jesus shall the gathering be." The birds are getting ready to meet Jesus, the Bridegroom, and we will be changed in the twinkling of an eye and meet the Lord in the air.

The Spirit of Winter.

The spirit of Winter is with us, making its presence known in many different ways—sometimes by cheery sunshine and glistening snows, and sometimes by driving winds and blinding storms. To many people it seems to take a delight in making bad things worse, for rheumatism twists harder, twinges sharper, catarrh becomes more annoying, and the many symptoms of scrofula are developed and aggravated. There is not much poetry in this, but there is truth, and it is a wonder that more people don't get rid of these ailments. The medicine that cures them—Hood's Sarsaparilla—is easily obtained and there is abundant proof that its cures are radical and permanent.

Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. IN THE DAYS OF '64.

The Last Christmas of the Southern Confederacy.

"We had some memorable Christmas days in the south during "the war," said Mrs. Zebulon B. Vance, wife of the late United States senator from North Carolina. "That of 1861 was different from any that had preceded it because we were in arms against the Federal government, and many of the male guests at southern homes that day wore Confederate uniforms. Much of the talk at the Christmas dinner table was of sieges and battles and marches, but we were all full of hope and confidence.

"Christmas, 1862, found us but poorly prepared to celebrate it. Our supplies were few, and Confederate money was at a heavy discount. Then came the bitter year of 1863, with the fall of Vicksburg and the defeat at Gettysburg. With sad faces, harmonizing well with their dresses of coarse black stuff, the women of the south devoted themselves to picking lint and spinning and weaving for husbands, fathers, brothers and sweethearts in the field.

"Christmas, 1864—the last Christmas of the war—dawned, and what a gloomy festival it was for the people of the south! Of manufactured products we had practically none. Our hairpins were made of long black thorns, with a ball of sealing wax on the end. We had made into dresses every scrap of available material, while our feet were incased in home-made cloth shoes. The slaves, having heard of 'de 'mancipation proclamation,' knew that they were free and had all scattered away. Desolation seemed to reign over everything. Of all the Christmas days I have known that last Christmas in the south in wartime is the one of all others that I am most certain never to forget."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Food Value of Dried Fruit.

Sir Francis Henry Laking, King Edward's famous physician, has an article in the Scientific American on "The Food Value of Dried Fruits," in which he says:

"From recent analyses of samples of dried currants the fact has been verified that the fruit contains no less than 73 per cent of sugar in its most valuable form. This great saccharic proportion is already in the shape of grape sugar, and thus is potential to take up its work of producing and maintaining energy and vitality. It is what is known as 'invert' sugar, a composite of dextrose and levulose. It assists digestion, it allays nervous excitement and provides nourishment in case of nervous exhaustion.

"In the dietary of the peasant classes of Greece, a people remarkable for their hardihood and health, the currant appears at almost every meal, while in Germany and Holland currant bread is a common article of food. Indeed, among the many shapes in which the currant may be brought to the table a bread made of, say, thirty parts of currants to seventy parts of dough is one of the best.

"For children and those who must of necessity adopt a diet currants will prove a digestive aid and act as a gentle and natural laxative. Therefore any accusation against the delicious, economical and valuable little fruit must fall to the ground as absurd."

Facts About Currants.

Greece has an absolute natural monopoly of currant production, which averages about 160,000 tons a year. The seedless grapes, which when dried are known as currants, grow nowhere else in the world.

It takes about four pounds of fresh grapes to make a pound of dried currants. No artificial processes are used in curing. The best qualities are dried in the shade, all others in the sun.

The United States consumes 35,000,000 pounds of dried currants a year, less than half a pound a head. Great Britain's consumption is three pounds per capita and Holland's six pounds.

Dietists who have made a study of the food value of currants say that 97 per cent of their weight is soluble in water and that currants contain 75 per cent of nutritive value, or more than twice as much nourishment as lean beef.

To safeguard the industry upon which the welfare of the whole nation depends, owing to the fact that currants form 65 per cent of Greece's total production, heavy penalties are imposed upon growers who pick their crop before it is ripe or pack it before it is thoroughly dried and cleaned.

All the Gold IN GEORGIA Could not Buy-

Roding, Ga. August 27, 1906.

Messrs. E. C. DeWitt & Co.,
Chicago, Ills.

Gentlemen:—

In 1897 I had a disease of the stomach and bowels. Some physicians told me it was Dyspepsia, some Consumption of the Lungs, others said consumption of the Bowels. One physician said I would not live until Spring, and for four long years I existed on a little boiled milk, soda biscuits, doctors' prescriptions and Dyspepsia remedies that flooded the market. I could not digest anything I ate, and in the Spring 1902 I picked up one of your Almanacs as a poor emaciated Dyspepsia wreck will grasp at anything, and that Almanac happened to be my life saver. I bought a fifty cent bottle of KODOL DYSPEPSIA CURE and the benefit I received from that bottle ALL THE GOLD IN GEORGIA COULD NOT BUY. I kept on taking it and in two months I went back to my work, as a machinist, and in three months I was well and hearty. I still use a little occasionally as I find it a fine blood purifier and a good tonic.

May you live long and prosper.

Yours very truly,
C. N. CORNELL.

THE WOMAN WHO COUGHED.

Catarrh had nearly ruined me. It had eaten away the partition in my nose; produced Asthma, Bronchitis, Rheumatism; ruined my stomach; in fact, gone all through my system. Then Grip finished me. I was a wreck; took cold at nothing; and coughed day and night. The doctors dosed me with opium and quinine. No good. Cough 'cures'? Bah! Then Brazilian Balm renovated me. Killed every germ. Took 10 $1.00 bottles. Now I'm like a girl of 18.

One Way to Advertise.

Toole in his autobiography says that when returning with Irving from the funeral of one of the Broughs he found a crowd surrounding a man in a fit of some kind, possibly of drunkenness, Toole made his way through the crowd by saying: "Excuse me, gentlemen, I'm a doctor. Allow me to examine this patient." Having loosened his necktie and opened his shirt and sounded his chest, Toole produced with professional gravity some kind of plasters apparently and applied one to the patient's forehead, one to his throat and three to his chest. He made his way back through the crowd to Irving. "Run, run for the nearest cab," he whispered to Irving, "or we shall be murdered!" Hardly had they reached the cab before they heard a roar of rage from the crowd, who had discovered that the supposed doctor's plasters were fly sheet advertisements bearing the legend, "See Toole in 'Dot!'"

Righting a Wrong.

A burly, fierce looking man and a meek, inoffensive looking little chap were sawing timber with a crosscut saw. A strapping Irishman, passing that way, stopped to watch them. Back and forth, back and forth, they pulled at the saw. Finally the Irishman, with a whoop and a yell, rushed at the big man and brought him to the ground, burying his knees deep into the sawyer's chest.

Biff! Bang! Thump! Biff!

"There," he said, letting him have one parting blow square on the nose, "now mebbe ye'll let the little felly hev it!"—Everybody's.

A Possibility.

Old Nancy Doane was noted for the striking originality of some of her expressions. One day she was talking about the utter inanity of another old woman in the neighborhood, and she said:

"I never see her beat! She'll lop down in a cheer, an' there she'll set an' set an' set, doin' absolutely nothin' fer hours an' hours, day after day. 'Pon my soul, I sh'd think she'd mildew!"

Even Worse.

He—Darling, don't you know that it is unlucky to postpone a wedding? She—I can't help that. My dressmaker is ill, and I'm afraid it would be more unlucky if I were to go and get married before having all the clothes I want made while my father is still willing to pay for them.

"No," replied the man; "I work for my living."—London Mail.

WAY TO MAKE LINENS IN AMERICA.

Introduction of an Industry That Opens a New Market For Farmers and Will Add Millions to Textile Production.

Another revolution, textile experts say, is due to occur in the fabric making industry of the United States. Heretofore, owing to the high cost of labor in America, it has been impossible to manufacture our linens at home. American farmers raise millions of tons of flax, but only for the seed. The straw from which linen is made is burned.

Now a Massachusetts inventor has perfected a method of transforming flax straw into linen fiber that is commercially practicable under the labor conditions prevailing in the United States. From sixteen to thirty weeks are required by old world methods to accomplish what the process now controlled by the Oxford linen mills performs in twelve hours.

The initial process of linen making abroad is to weight down the flax straw in water until the woody "shive" is rotted away from the fiber. The "scutching" and combing of the straw that follow are done by hand. All of this work can now be done in twelve hours by machines which loosen the fiber from the straw and prepare it for the chemical baths that remove the gums and oils and bleach the fiber ready for spinning. At a recent demonstration for the benefit of representatives of the press and others especially interested these chemical processes were actually accomplished in a space of thirty-five minutes.

The best of the European methods secures about 170 pounds of fiber from a thousand pounds of straw and sacrifices the seed crop. By the Mudge process 250 pounds of fiber are obtained from the same amount of straw after the seed has been saved. The new process also preserves the shive for paper making and the tow, which has many profitable uses, including the manufacture of surgical bandages, machinery waste, etc.

Now Burn Millions of Tons of Flax.

A late bulletin of the department of agriculture says that "millions of tons of straw are burned every year, most of which in quality and length for the production of fiber far excels the average straw from which the Russian peasant makes the fiber which chiefly supplies the linen fabrics of the world. Not only is a new market now opened up for the farmer, but for the first time [illegible] in Massachusetts and Vermont mills are already being equipped to produce linens made in America."

Eventually the $22,000,000 a year that we now send abroad for linen will be kept at home, and linens need not any longer be a luxury. The Oxford processes provide a means for utilizing a raw material which costs less than one-third as much as cotton, but which in the finished product sells for many times as much.

Even without the present tariff on linens they could not be manufactured by old world methods in successful competition with the new process, and the establishment of the industry here begins with a prospect of adding enormously to the total of cotton fabric production, now valued at half a billion dollars a year.

LAWS AGAINST TOBACCO.

Early Legislation to Restrict the Use of the Weed.

One of the curiosities of early colonial legislation is the laws enacted against the planting and the use of tobacco. Evidently the magistrates and elders of those days regarded that "creature called tobacko" as one of the many emissaries of the devil, against whom it was their duty to wage constant warfare. The planting of it was forbidden except in small quantities to be used "for meere necessitie, for phisick, for perservaceon of the health, and that the same may be taken privately by ancient men."

All keepers of hotels and other public places were ordered not to "suffer any tobacco to be taken into their houses." If they disobeyed the order, they were required to pay a fine to the "victualler" and one also to "party that takes it." At little later the law was changed so that it was forbidden to "take tobacco in any wine or common victual house except in a private room there, so as the master of said house nor any guest there shall take offense thereat, which, if they do, the said person shall forbear upon pain of 2 shillings sixpence for every such offense."

No one was permitted to use tobacco "publicquely," not even in his own house, in the presence of strangers. It was against the law for two men to smoke together. In Windsor every user of tobacco was required to procure a physician's certificate before he was permitted to enjoy the obnoxious weed. All smoking was forbidden within two miles of a meeting house on the Sabbath day. Connecticut, as a great indulgence to travelers, allowed a man to smoke once during a journey of ten miles made not by trains, but afoot or by horse locomotion.—New York Press.

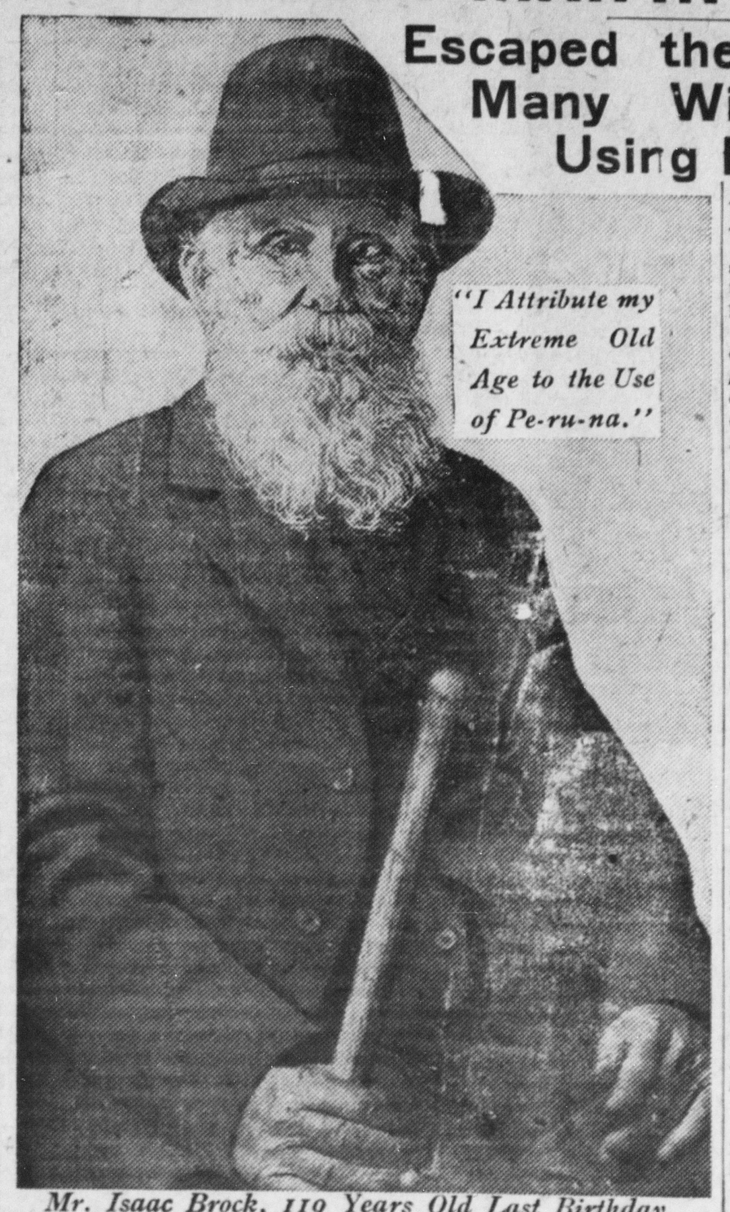
THE OLDEST MAN IN AMERICA

Escaped the Terrors of Many Winters By Using Pe-ru-na.



"I Attribute my Extreme Old Age to the Use of Pe-ru-na."

Mr. Isaac Brock, 119 Years Old Last Birthday.

ISAAC BROCK, a citizen of McLennan county, Texas, has lived for 119 years.

For many years he resided at Bosque Falls, eighteen miles west of Waco, but now lives with his son-in-law at Valley Mills, Texas.

Some time ago, by request, Uncle Isaac came to Waco and sat for his picture, holding in his hand a stick cut from the grave of General Andrew Jackson.

Mr. Brock is a dignified old gentleman, showing few signs of decrepitude.

His family Bible is still preserved, and it shows that the date of his birth was written 119 years ago.

Born before the United States were formed.
Saw 22 presidents elected.
Pe-ru-na has protected him from all sudden changes.
Veteran of four wars.
Shod a horse when 99 years old.
Always conquered the grip with Pe-ru-na.
Witness in a land suit at the age of 110 years.
Believes Pe-ru-na the greatest remedy of the age for catarrhal troubles.

IN speaking of his good health and extreme old age, Mr. Brock says:

"After a man has lived in the world as long as I have, he ought to have found out a great many things by experience. I think I have done so.

"One of the things I have found out to my entire satisfaction is the proper thing for ailments that are due directly to the effects of the climate. For 119 years I have withstood the changeable climate of the United States.

"I have always been a very healthy man, but, of course, subject to the affections which are due to sudden changes in the climate and temperature.

"As for Dr. Hartman's remedy, Pe-ru-na, I have found it to be the best, if not the only reliable remedy for these affections. It has been my standby for many years, and I attribute my good health and extreme old age to this remedy.

"It exactly meets all my requirements. It protects me from the evil effects of sudden changes; it gives me strength; it keeps my blood in good circulation. I have come to rely upon it almost entirely for the many little things for which I need medicine.

"When epidemics of la grippe first began to make their appearance in this country I was a sufferer from this disease.

"I had several long sieges with the grip. At first I did not know that Pe-ru-na was a remedy for this disease. When I heard that la grippe was epidemic catarrh I tried Pe-ru-na for la grippe and found it to be just the thing."

In a later letter, Mr. Brock writes:

"I am well and feeling as well as I have for years. I would not be without Peruna."

Yours truly,

Isaac Brock,

A letter dated July 3, 1906, written for Mr. Brock by his wife, Sarah J. Brock, states:

"Last winter I had just gotten up out of a spell of sickness, when I commenced taking Peruna. I think it improved my health very much."

In a postscript, Mrs. Brock adds: "He receives a great many letters inquiring about what Peruna will do. I do not answer them all, as I think they can get a bottle and try it."

Children and Candy.

Give children plenty of pure sugar, taffy and butter scotch and they'll have little need of cod liver oil, says Dr. Woods Hutchinson in Woman's Home Companion. In short, sugar is, after meat, bread and butter, easily our next most important and necessary food. You can put the matter to a test very easily. Just leave off the pie, pudding or other desserts at your lunch or midday dinner. You'll be astonished to find how quickly you'll feel "empty" again and how "unfinished" the meal will seem. You can't get any workingman to accept a dinner pail without pie in it. And he's absolutely right. The only thing that can take the place of sugar here is beer or wine. It is a significant fact that the free lunch counters run in connection with bars furnish every imaginable thing except sweets. Even the restaurants and lunch grills attached to saloons or bars often refuse to serve desserts of any sort. They know their business! The more sugar and sweets a man takes at a meal the less alcohol he wants. Conversely, nearly every drinking man will tell you that he has lost his taste for sweets. The more candy a nation consumes, the less alcohol.

The Mayor of Berlin.

One of the principal requirements of a mayor in Germany is unqualified honesty, for in the municipal administration of Germany graft in any form would not be tolerated. To become the mayor of a city like Berlin the applicant must have established his reputation for efficiency in governing other German cities. His career is carefully scrutinized by the members of the town council who select him, for not only must he be competent and successfully perform the duties of his high position, but still so young as likely to remain competent for many years, for a mayor in Prussia is elected for a term of twelve years and if not re-elected after that period is entitled to a life pension of half the amount of his salary. After a service of six years his pension is one-fourth of his salary and after serving twenty years two-thirds. He need not necessarily be a resident of Berlin at the time of his appointment—in fact, the mayor is usually chosen from the residents of other cities.

Culture In West Africa.

Culture and commerce are spreading in west Africa. A merchant sends us the following letter, received from a chief: "Dear Gentlemens!—I made my Step to the house of a certain amable friend of mine for invitation and wich our attention highly attracted by taken coloquy for a few minutes. I took a certain magazine in reading of Something. And I was pursing through pages over pages yours name was Substantially Commeroated to me that you are the best and known Merchants In every produce in the city of London. Therefore I have found myself Somewhat inclimable to pen you to Send me your general Samples, together with Catalogue, and I will soon forwarding my remittance to you promptly fore quantity of goods. Trusting you will not refust as quick by as possible Expecting to heare from you again good news. * * * — London Standard.

No Landlubber.

Young Jack Tabbs has only been in the navy for a few months, but there is not a more enthusiastic sea dog in the whole of his majesty's service. He recently made application for and received the usual leave and proceeded to London and his mother's house.

Mrs. Tabbs lives on the third floor of a house in Camberwell, and when he arrived at her address he stood in the doorway and bawled up the stairs:

"Mother, aloft there! Jack's come home! Open the window!"

"Why, Jacky, my dear," cried the old lady from the landing, "whatever's wrong with the stairs?"

"Stairs!" cried the weather worn tar, with ineffable contempt. "What do I know about stairs? Just you open the window and lower a rope to the main deck, and be quick about it!"—London Express.

Dog Seeks Aid For Horse.

Frisk, a beautiful coach dog and Jack, a fine bay two-year-old of trotting stock, were raised together on our farm and became fast friends, sleeping in the same stall and, in fact, were almost inseparable. Jack had been overfed on new oats, resulting in a severe attack of colic, which often proves fatal to horses in a short time. About midnight Frisk awakened us by scratching at the door and barking as if in great distress. Upon opening the door to ascertain the cause of the uproar, the dog pleadingly stood up on his hind feet, putting his paws against me and whined most pitifully, then started toward the barn in the same appealing manner. My curiosity being thoroughly aroused, I followed and, before reaching the barn, could hear Jack kicking and groaning. To cure him was an easy matter. Years afterward Jack was a "favorite" in many races, and Frisk was still a close and loyal protector, guarding Jack from all intruders who sought entrance without the trainer or myself.—Chicago Tribune.

BATTLESHIP SQUADRON.

It is the Centre of Attraction at Rio Janeiro Just Now.

Rio Janeiro, January, 14th.—Swinging lazily at their anchors, the American battleships early on Monday morning seemed as though they were enjoying a well earned rest after their run of three thousand miles and more from Trinidad. They lay under the green hills of Rio in the shadow of Mount Corcovada, that looks right down into the streets of the city, and soon the streets took on a lively appearance, as thousands made their way down by the edge of the water where they could watch the ships and the launches dashing in and out.

A right warm welcome awaited the fleet from the very moment the signal flags went up, announcing its approach, and from the first landing of the "Liberty" men until anchor is weighed Rio has much in store for those who wish to view its beauties and enjoy its bounty.

Entertainments have been arranged for almost every hour of the day and some of the hours of the night as well, but the fact that Rear Admiral Evans, the commander of the fleet, is ill, is cause for the deepest regret. The Brazilian officials deplore this the more, as they wished especially to make this visit the occasion for marked attention to the Americans, but Admiral Evans is suffering from rheumatism and it is feared he will not be able to be present at the fetes and without his presence these must lose some of their character.

Grangers' Week Ended

When the school of agriculture of the Pennsylvania State college one year ago instituted a course of study for the farmers of the state during the first week in January the officials little realized the effect such a free course would have. With the close of the first course in 1907 there had been in attendance about 150 farmers of the state. This year between 400 and 500 farmers, poultrymen, breeders, creamerymen and buttermakers attended the lectures. The school of agriculture spared no expense this year in the endeavor to obtain the best results from this course of free instruction and, judging by the interest taken in the lectures and demonstrations along all lines by the large number of "students," the results will be far reaching. If the session of 1908 is a criterion of what 1909 will be some provision will have to be made to accommodate the large number of grangers who will come in.

The department could not have devised a wiser movement for education than that of farmers' week. The subjects selected embraced every phase of farm life, even including that of domestic science. And what is the result. The farmers and their wives have returned to their homes imbuded with new ideas and a determination to put into practice the things which they learned would produce the best results in their chosen field of work—the best that God ever gave to mankind.

The closing session was held Wednesday afternoon when Prof. Elton D. Walker, gave a practical talk on the use of cement, Prof. Baker one on forestry and Prof. Barron lessons from fertilizer plots.

The several hundred farmers in attendance organized the Pennsylvania Seed Improvement association. A constitution was adopted and these officers elected: Vice-presidents, Alfred S. Haines, Westtown; J. T. Campbell, Hartstown; Prof. John W. Gilmore, State College, secretary and treasurer. A president will not be chosen until the meeting next year.

The Farmers Wife

Is very careful about her churn. She scalds it thoroughly after using, and gives it a sun bath to sweeten it. She knows that if her churn is sour it will taint the butter that is made in it. The stomach is a churn. In the stomach and digestive and nutritive tracts are performed processes which are exactly akin to the churning of butter. It is not apparent then that if this stomach churn is "sour" it sours all which is put into it? The evil of a sour stomach is not the bad taste in the mouth and the foul breath caused by it, but the corruption of the pure current of the blood and the dissemination of disease throughout the body. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes the sour stomach sweet. It does for the stomach what the washing and sun bath do for the churn—absolutely removes every tainting or corrupting element. "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol. Its ingredients are plainly printed on each bottle-wrapper.

DEATH AGAIN TAKES ITS TOLL

There Was a Wild Rush for Freedom—but Many Failed to Escape.

Boyertown, Pa. January 13.—Between fifty and seventy-five persons were burned to death tonight in a fire which completely destroyed Rhoads opera house in this place.

The opera house was crowded with the members of St. John's Lutheran Sunday school who were attending a benefit given for that church. While the show was in progress, a tank of gasoline exploded. The actors endeavored to quiet the audience but in their anxiety to make themselves heard and to avoid the awful stampede of the women and children, the coal oil lamps which were used at the foot lights were overturned setting the place on fire. The flames, fed by the oil, shot almost to the ceiling and there was a wild rush of the seven hundred persons to escape from the burning building. Scores of women and children were trampled upon and several who escaped being burned to death died after being dragged from the opera house.

The night was one of wailing and anguish. The shrieks of mothers who had rushed to the scene as soon as they learned of the fire was pitiful. As the night wore on the crowds surrounding the building grew to such proportions that it was almost impossible for the police force, which had been augmented by a score of men from Pottstown and Reading, to keep the people back. One woman who said she had lost her entire family in the theatre was with difficulty restrained from throwing hers lf into the roaring flames.

At 1 o'clock a special train from Reading bearing physicians and nurses reached here but there was little for them to do, as the injured who had dashed themselves to the pavement, had been cared for by the physicians assisted by the Pottstown relief corps. A few minutes after midnight the rear wall of the theatre collapsed. The flames broke out anew and those who had vainly hoped to be able to find the remains of some of their loved ones turned in despair from the scene of catastrophy.

Caught the Thief.

Recently in the village of Taharamura, Japan, all the male inhabitants above the age of fifteen years were assembled in front of the local Shinto shrine at the call of the village chief. A thief had been making depredations in the local tobacco plantations, and the chief sought to discover him. Outlines of the feet of all the villagers were taken on sheets of paper, and then these were compared with the tracks left by the thief in the tobacco fields. Nothing resulted from this experiment. The next day the inhabitants were called together again. A great hole was dug in the ground and a raging charcoal fire was burned in it. All persons present were ordered to walk through the fire barefooted, it being declared that no person would be burned except the guilty one. All advanced to undergo the ordeal except one, Shukichi Shibaba, a man of evil reputation. He declined to trust his feet to the redhot coals. Accordingly he was arrested and soon confessed his guilt.

Foods are Misbranded.

Dr. William Frear, of the Pennsylvania State College has made an examination of 62 different brands of breakfast foods and finds that many of them bear deceptive labels.

In some of the staples condemned the articles were misbranded by extremely misleading claims, such as the contents of the package which weighed a few ounces, were equal in food value to five pounds of beef, or a number of loaves of bread; that the starch in these foods had been thoroughly converted to soluble sugars, whereas, in point of fact, most of it had been removed, when in fact all, or nearly all, of the bran still remained therein; that the foods were superior as brain and nerve foods to all others. when in point of fact they contained virtually what is present in graham bread.

It has been decided to institute proceeding against the dealers from whom these goods were purchased.

The Only Way.

"I am writing an article," he said, "on 'The Way to Manage a Woman.'"

"I suppose it will be a long one," she replied in a slightly scornful tone.

"No," he answered, "it will be quite short. In fact, it will consist of only two words—'Don't try!'"—Birmingham Post.

Ware Your Friend's Plants.

"If you have a friend going away for the summer," said the woman of experience, "don't keep a plant for her. The thing will probably die away, and you would consider yourself responsible. I worried through six weeks one summer tending a plant for a friend and then was invited to the country for a week end. I stayed two days in addition. Of course the plant was dead when I came back, and my outing was half spoiled by worrying over it. I bought a duplicate of it the day before my friend returned, and it cost me $2. Even then she said she thought it looked somewhat peaked."—Exchange.

Kitchen Wrinkles.

Put a bit of camphor away with silver not in use, it will prevent tarnishing.

To keep wooden bread boards in good condition, scrub them with sand or salt instead of soap.

To revive flowers sent by post, plunge the stems into hot water and let them remain until the water is cold, then cut the ends of the stems afresh and put the flowers into fresh cold water.

Match marks on the kitchen wall, which have been caused by carelessly striking matches on them, will disappear if rubbed first with the cut surface of a lemon, then with a clean cloth dipped in whiting. Afterwards wash the surface with warm water and soap, and then quickly wipe with a clean cloth wrung out of clear water.

Make your own night lights. If you run short of night lights try this plan: Take an ordinary wax candle and some finely powdered salt. Burn the candle so as to get it level, and then cover the top with a layer of salt, leaving only the blackened end of the wich exposed. Light the candle, and it will burn slowly, giving a faint, but steady light.

To give handkerchief's a faint scent of violets, add a small piece of orris root to the water they are boiled in.

An ordinary telegraph wire makes a better line to hang clothes on to dry than the hempen one generally used. The wire does not sag, rot or break. It is easily made clean.

Every cook should clean all her flues and remove all the soot at least once a week if she wants her range to "draw" properly. An oven will never heat, however big a fire is put on, if the stove is choked with soot.

Add a little glycerine when making jam, and the sugar will not ferment or crystalize on the top of the pots.

New Horticultural Head.

Prof. Ralph L. Watts, of Johnstown, was elected last Saturday horticulturist of the Pennsylvania State College Experiment station, vice Prof. George C. Butz, deceased. Prof. Watts was graduated from the Pennsylvania State college in 1890, having taken a complete course in agriculture, and has since then been prominently engaged in that line of work in many states of the Union, particularly in Tennessee. For some years he has successfully conducted a cabbage farm on the hilltops near Johnstown. His services have been in great demand by the Government and state departments of agriculture as a lecturer. He is a man of wide experience and his election as horticulturist to the station means much for that department.

By accepting a place on the college faculty Prof. Watts sacrifices a lucrative income derived from market gardening. His success in this direction was in great part responsible for his election. Following the announcement by Dr. T. F. Hunt, he was congratulated by the members of the faculty and by several hundred farmers.

First Patent In America.

The first patent in America was granted to Joseph Jenks, a founder and machinist who had emigrated from Hammersmith, England, where he was born in 1602. He was a very ingenious man, and was induced by Governor Winthrop, the younger, to come to Lynn, Mass., about 1642, as master mechanic to establish "the iron and steel works."

He was acknowledged head of the iron smelting and founding business and the first builder of machinery in this country and first patentee of invention in America, having introduced the idea (first granted by act of parliament in 1625) of protection for the manufacture of improvements by petition to the government of Massachusetts Bay. In 1646 he took patents for mill improvements, and in 1655 he patented the present form of the grass scythe, for which he should be held in grateful remembrance. In 1652 he made dies for the first coinage of money, the pine tree shillings. In 1654 he built the first fire engine to the order of the selectmen of Boston (the first ever built in this country); in 1657 he built a forge and entered upon the manufacture of his improved scythes nine years before his application was granted.—Journal of American History.

Elk Habits.

A western writer marvels over the actions of the elk in Wyoming, just as other good people have found the habits of the deer of the Rocky Mountains remarkable. Comparatively few hunters seek big game in the roughest parts of the high ranges during the open season, and to some of them it seems strange that the game should appear in the lower country at the close of the shooting season, and commence to pilfer hay from the ranchmen's stacks and feed with the cattle. But little imagination is necessary to fake up stories based on the habits of the big game, which leave the snow-covered higher ranges in early winter and descend below the snow line to seek the food which is found in the lower country. Almost invariably these movements of the game are construed to mean a large increase, and these estimates are of a class with those made in the Maine woods in summer, when deer are counted over and over again as they are seen from day to day.

She'd laugh and sing the whole long day;

[illegible] A MINUTE [illegible] SENT BY WIRE.

This Is the Speed Attained by Automatic System Controlled by New Telegraph Company Soon to Enter Field.

In the last few weeks scores of experts have investigated the Delany rapid automatic system of telegraphy controlled by the Telepost company, which is soon to have in operation a telegraph system in competition with the Western Union and the Postal. Over artificial circuits equal to commercial wires from New York to Buffalo the Delany system can be seen any time in the New York and Washington offices of the Telepost company sending and receiving telegrams at the rate of a thousand words a minute.

The apparatus on which a new national telegraph system is to be founded that will carry wire messages between all points for a flat rate of a cent a word is so simple that anybody can understand it. There is a perforating machine with punches magnetically operating on a tape. These punches make the records, which are then ready to be fed through the transmitter to the wire. The double row of holes in the tape passing through the transmitter's contact fingers result in positive and negative impulses, which on the receiving tape are recorded in the form of dots and dashes. The current passing through the chemically prepared tape from an iron electrode to a platinum electrode forms clear blue marks that any one who knows the Morse alphabet can read and transcribe.

In the fewest possible words, this is the system that it has taken Patrick B. Delany twenty years to evolve. When Thomas A. Edison dropped telegraphy Mr. Delany, who was an associate of Edison, took it up. Some 150 odd patents have since then been issued to him.

His first invention to attract world-wide attention was the synchronous-multiplex system of telegraphy, bought by the British government in 1885 and largely used on the English postal lines ever since. All six of the first class circuits of this system can be worked opposite or the same direction.

The next time Mr. Delany came into popular fame, though the telegraph world has always followed his work closely, was when he succeeded in the supposedly impossible feat of sending a cable message from Newfoundland to England with an ordinary Morse key.

But all the while he was keeping the patent office busy on his minor inventions Delany was hard at work on the automatic system of telegraphy adapted to commercial purposes, which has now been perfected to such a point that it forms the essential basis of an entirely new telegraph system for the whole United States.

Why the Delany system was not bought by the old line companies is no more (and no less) of a mystery than their failure to adopt other improvements in telegraphy which have reduced rates in foreign countries to a fraction of those prevailing here and resulted in so increasing business that Americans send considerably less than half as many telegrams as the Englishmen send.

Asked why one of the old companies had not bought his apparatus, Mr. Delany said recently that it might be because the patents were never offered to them. Inventors have known for years, Mr. Delany said, that there was no use in trying to deal with a company that had made a policy of refusing to consider all inventions and improvements except when they could be obtained for little or nothing. This was the experience of the men who devised the Page patent, the duplex and the quadruplex systems.

What the Delany system will do toward reducing telegraph rates is shown in the announcement of the Telepost company that it will carry twenty-five words for 25 cents, without regard to distance. On "teleposts" sent by wire, but delivered at destination by mail.

In Saxon Times.

In Norman and Saxon times an ox was always roasted whole over the Yule log at Christmas.

Thackeray as a Diner.

Many worthy and some notable persons have possessed the onion habit now and again. William Makepeace Thackeray, writing of himself in "Lovell the Widower," says, "It is notorious to all my friends there is a certain dish I cannot resist." He referred to stewed tripe and onions, as a proof of which it is narrated of him that on one occasion while on his way to dine with the Marquis of Westminster his eye caught sight of a placard in the window of a London restaurant bearing the legend, "Tripe and onions tonight." Going in, he called for the dish and writing materials and wrote off as an excuse to his would be host that he had unexpectedly met an old friend that insisted upon detaining him. Thackeray's favorite edibles were raw oysters and onions, and it may be recalled that he told Mr. Field, the Boston author, who acted as agent in his lecture tour in this country, that his chief purpose in coming to America was to obtain some of the famous large oysters of this land—which he had heard grew to fabulous size—instead of the little coppery things of England. At this first dinner of Boston, therefore, a plate of large "Providence rivers" was set before him as an appetizer. He partook of one with a surprised look. Being asked how he felt, he replied: "Profoundly grateful. I feel as if I had swallowed a baby." He added that he must eat an onion to digest him.

His Concession.

Miss Sallie Miller, the acknowledged belle of the town, had fewer beaus than were her due. This was owing to her father's peculiar aversion to all young men who called on his daughter. He had a disconcerting way of taking possession of the porch and snubbing her callers while they were waiting for her to come down.

One evening Newton Brown, a bashful young swain, came a trifle too early for Miss Sallie. Mr. Miller and Newton's father were close friends, but the boy had grown so rapidly that the old gentleman did not recognize little Newt Brown in this tall, gawky youth. "It looks as if it might rain," the young fellow ventured timidly.

"'Tain't a-goin' to rain," was the gruff response.

For about a quarter of an hour they sat in silence. Finally the old man's curiosity got the better of him.

"Who are you, anyway?" he growled.

"Newton Brown, sir."

"What! Not old Jake Brown's son?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, well," said Mr. Miller more kindly; "it may rain; it may rain."—Everybody's Magazine.

A Lesson In Honesty.

There is a restaurant in Broad street in which nearly a thousand persons eat during the noon hour. Each person eats what he pleases and when he goes to the cashier's desk announces the amount of his indebtedness. The proprietors figure that to trust to the honesty of their patrons is a saving of precious Wall street minutes and, besides, is good business. Once in awhile keen eyed employees capture a cheat. One of these, a youth, was "caught with the goods on" a few days ago and taken to the office of the proprietors. Given the choice of being arrested or going into the kitchen and washing dishes, the young man nearly collapsed of shame and fright. He begged not to be arrested and reluctantly agreed to wash dishes. For an hour or so the culprit struggled with a pile of dishes in a tub of steaming water. Then he was told he might depart. Now he brings his lunch from home.—New York Press.

What English Means.

Mrs. Smith—What are you reading, John? Mr. Smith—I am reading Herbert Spencer's "Principles of Biology." Mrs. Smith—Why—what—what's that, John? Mr. Smith—Herbert Spencer's "Biology." Let me read you an extract—his definition of life. Listen. "It consists of the definite combinations of heterogeneous changes, but simultaneous and successive, in combination with external coexistences and sequences."

"Why, John, what in the world is the man talking about?"

"I am astonished at you, Jane. Why, this is the work of the great English scientist."

"Yes, I know, but what is he writing about?"

"He is defining life, I told you. What did you suppose he was writing about?"

"Good gracious! I thought he was trying to get a patent on a clothes-horse."—London Tit-Bits.

When Religion Called.

In his book "Work In Great Cities" the bishop of London writes: "You have often not only to learn, but to practice, what may be described as the foot and door trick. It is ruination to the boot and sometimes hurts the toe, but it consists in rapidly, but quickly, passing the foot in the moment the door is opened in order to secure, at any rate, a few minutes' parley." As to what may happen he writes: "After long hesitation it will be opened by a little girl about half a foot, and then you will hear a distant voice from the wash tub in the rear, 'Well, Sally, who is it?' Then Sally will answer at the top of her voice, 'Please, mother, it's religion.' You will require all your presence of mind to cope with that."

The time came, however, when every door was thrown wide open to welcome "our bishop."—London Christian Globe.

Why the Sun Sets.

Little Jack asked his mother one night why the sun set so often. She told him that it might rise in the morning. This seemed a useless reason, and Jack hunted for another. At last he said:

"Oh, I know, mother. The sun sets so that she can hatch all the days."—Washington Star.

Children and Candy.

Give children plenty of pure sugar, taffy and butter scotch and they'll have little need of cod liver oil, says Dr. Woods Hutchinson in Woman's Home Companion. In short, sugar is, after meat, bread and butter, easily our next most important and necessary food. You can put the matter to a test very easily. Just leave off the pie, pudding or other desserts at your lunch or midday dinner. You'll be astonished to find how quickly you'll feel "empty" again and how "unfinished" the meal will seem. You can't get any workingman to accept a dinner pail without pie in it. And he's absolutely right. The only thing that can take the place of sugar here is beer or wine. It is a significant fact that the free lunch counters run in connection with bars furnish every imaginable thing except sweets. Even the restaurants and lunch grills attached to saloons or bars often refuse to serve desserts of any sort. They know their business! The more sugar and sweets a man takes at a meal the less alcohol he wants. Conversely, nearly every drinking man will tell you that he has lost his taste for sweets. The more candy a nation consumes, the less alcohol.

The Mayor of Berlin.

One of the principal requirements of a mayor in Germany is unqualified honesty, for in the municipal administration of Germany graft in any form would not be tolerated. To become the mayor of a city like Berlin the applicant must have established his reputation for efficiency in governing other German cities. His career is carefully scrutinized by the members of the town council who select him, for not only must he be competent and successfully perform the duties of his high position, but still so young as likely to remain competent for many years, for a mayor in Prussia is elected for a term of twelve years and if not re-elected after that period is entitled to a life pension of half the amount of his salary. After a service of six years his pension is one-fourth of his salary and after serving twenty years two-thirds. He need not necessarily be a resident of Berlin at the time of his appointment—in fact, the mayor is usually chosen from the residents of other cities.

No Landlubber.

Young Jack Tabbs has only been in the navy for a few months, but there is not a more enthusiastic sea dog in the whole of his majesty's service. He recently made application for and received the usual leave and proceeded to London and his mother's house.

Mrs. Tabbs lives on the third floor of a house in Camberwell, and when he arrived at her address he stood in the doorway and bawled up the stairs:

"Mother, aloft there! Jack's come home! Open the window!"

"Why, Jacky, my dear," cried the old lady from the landing, "whatever's wrong with the stairs?"

"Stairs!" cried the weather worn tar, with ineffable contempt. "What do I know about stairs? Just you open the window and lower a rope to the main deck, and be quick about it!"—London Express.

A Wasted Motion.

"Ladies," called the president of the afternoon whist club—"ladies, it has been moved and seconded that there shall be no conversation at the card tables. What shall we do with the motion?"

"I suggest that we discuss it while we play," piped a shrill voice from Table A, and the suggestion was adopted.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Caught the Thief.

Recently in the village of Taharamura, Japan, all the male inhabitants above the age of fifteen years were assembled in front of the local Shinto shrine at the call of the village chief. A thief had been making depredations in the local tobacco plantations, and the chief sought to discover him. Outlines of the feet of all the villagers were taken on sheets of paper, and then these were compared with the tracks left by the thief in the tobacco field. Nothing resulted from this experiment. The next day the inhabitants were called together again. A great hole was dug in the ground and a raging charcoal fire was burned in it. All persons present were ordered to walk through the fire barefooted, it being declared that no person would be burned except the guilty one. All advanced to undergo the ordeal except one, Shukichi Shibaba, a man of evil reputation. He declined to trust his feet to the redhot coals. Accordingly he was arrested and soon confessed his guilt.

JAPANESE PREPARING

Famous Inventor of Arms and Explosives Expects War at Any Time.

RUMORS DISTASTEFUL.

London Banker Declares Japan Only Seeks to Rival the United States in Commerce.

HAS JUST ARRIVED FROM JAPAN

Washington, Jan. 10th—Japan is making preparations for war and may strike us at any moment. Such a declaration was made Thursday by Hudson Maxim, the famous arms and explosive inventor. The old Japanese game is to rush war preparations while crying about poverty.

President Roosevelt and Secretary Root, through diplomatic channels, have let foreign governments know that rumors of war between the United States and Japan are extremely distasteful to this country. Consequently newspapers of the continent which have beentprinting "scare stories" about the cruise of Admiral Evan's fleet probably will be called off, if, indeed, they have been bottled up already. The changed tone of the Parisian press is pointed out as one of the results of the propaganda of the president and the secretary.

Ambassador Jusserand, of France, an intimate of the president, and Baron des Planches, Italian Ambassador, are said to have taken the lead in informing their governments that in conversations at the White House they had learned that there is absolutely no possibility of war between the United States and Japan.

Berlin, Jan. 10th.—George Hein, a London banker, who bas just arrived in Germany from Japan, scoffs at the idea of war between that country and the United States. Hein introduced Japanese securities into Europe a few years ago. On account of his efforts in that direction he was the recipient of confidences from the Elder Statesmen and from financiers of Tokio. Hein said on Thursday:

"I was assured over and over again that Japan had seen how costly even a victorious war is. As Japan has secured independence and recognition as a great power, there is no possibility of another war in which it will be the aggressor.

"The Mikado's government recognizes that the country will require a long period of peace for the development of its natural wealth and industries and for the adjustment of the empire's finances on a sound basis. Nobody of political importance sees any really serious cloud on the political horizon.

DEEP SEA FISHING.

Quite as Much a Game of Chance as Politics or Poker.

You let down a heavy lump of lead and two big hooks baited with clams into thirty, forty or sixty feet of water. Then you wait until something nudges the line or until you suspect that the hooks are bare.

Then you give the line a quick jerk and pull in hand over hand, with more or less resistance, and see what you have drawn into the grab bag.

It may be a silly but nutritious cod, gaping in surprise at this curious termination of his involuntary rise in the world, or a silvery haddock, staring at you with round, reproachful eyes, or a pollock, handsome, but worthless, or a shiny, writhing dogfish, whose villainy is written on every line of his degenerate, chinless face.

It may be that spiny gargoyle of the sea, a sculpin, or a soft and stupid hake from the mud flats. It may be any one of the grotesque products of Neptune's vegetable garden, a sea cucumber, a sea carrot or a sea cabbage, or it may be nothing at all.

When you have made your grab and deposited the result, if it be edible, in the barrel which stands in the middle of the boat, you try another grab, and that's the whole story.

It is astonishing how much amusement apparently sane men get out of such a simple game as this. The interest lies, first, in the united effort to fill the barrel, and, second, in the rivalry among the fishermen as to which of them shall take in the largest cod or the greatest number of haddock, these being regarded as prize packages. The sculpin and the sea vegetables may be compared to comic valentines, which expose the recipient to ridicule.

The dogfish are like tax notices and assessments—the man who gets one of them gets less than nothing, for they count against the catcher. It is quite as much a game of chance as politics or poker. You do not know on which side of the boat the good fish are hidden.

You cannot tell the difference between the nibble of a cod and the bite of a dogfish. You have no idea of what is coming to you until you have hauled in almost all of your line and caught sight of your allotment wriggling and whirling in the blue water. Sometimes you get twins.—Scribner's.

LAWS AGAINST TOBACCO.

Early Legislation to Restrict the Use of the Weed.

One of the curiosities of early colonial legislation is the laws enacted against the planting and the use of tobacco. Evidently the magistrates and elders of those days regarded that "creature called tobacko" as one of the many emissaries of the devil, against whom it was their duty to wage constant warfare. The planting of it was forbidden except in small quantities to be used "for meere necessitie, for phisick, for perservaceon of the health, and that the same may be taken privately by ancient men."

All keepers of hotels and other public places were ordered not to "suffer any tobacco to be taken into their houses." If they disobeyed the order, they were required to pay a fine to the "victualler" and one also to "party that takes it." At little later the law was changed so that it was forbidden to "take tobacco in any wine or common victual house except in a private room there, so as the master of said house nor any guest there shall take offense thereat, which, if they do, the said person shall forbear upon pain of 2 shillings sixpence for every such offense."

No one was permitted to use tobacco "publicquely," not even in his own house, in the presence of strangers. It was against the law for two men to smoke together. In Windsor every user of tobacco was required to procure a physician's certificate before he was permitted to enjoy the obnoxious weed. All smoking was forbidden within two miles of a meeting house on the Sabbath day. Connecticut, as a great indulgence to travelers, allowed a man to smoke once during a journey of ten miles made not by trains, but afoot or by horse locomotion.—New York Press.

Ware Your Friend's Plants.

"If you have a friend going away for the summer," said the woman of experience, "don't keep a plant for her. The thing will probably die away, and you would consider yourself responsible. I worried through six weeks one summer tending a plant for a friend and then was invited to the country for a week end. I stayed two days in addition. Of course the plant was dead when I came back, and my outing was half spoiled by worrying over it. I bought a duplicate of it the day before my friend returned, and it cost me $2. Even then she said she thought it looked somewhat peaked."—Exchange.

Cheap Cheer.

A charitable man dropped a nickel in a blind beggar's hat and exclaimed in a benevolent voice, "There, my poor fellow, is a quarter for you."

"Why on earth," said the man's companion, "did you give him a nickel and say it was a quarter?"

"Oh, was the reply, "I wanted to cheer him up."—Argonaut.

The Long Conflict.

Little Sally (reading)—What is a prolonged conflict, Harry? Small Harry—I don't know. I asked papa this morning what it was, and he said it was something I couldn't understand until I grew up and got married.—Chicago News.

Suited His Temper.

"You seem to find that book very interesting," said Mrs. Henpeck.

"Yes," replied Henry; "it's delightful. I've glanced at the ending, and the hero and heroine don't get married after all."—Washington Herald.

Whether a knave or a fool can do the greater harm is one of the questions which twenty centuries of experience has not fully determined.—Dallas News.

Old Feather Beds.

Make a thin cotton batting pad—or use an old one if you have it—the size of the feather bed to be used. Lay the pad on a quilt frame, or the dining table will do. Lay the feather bed on the pad and smooth or level the feathers all out so that they will be divided evenly, then fasten the edges of the pad and bed together with pins. Get a long needle and some strong cord—common wrapping cord will do—and tie as you would a comfort, but not too close, about the same as a mattress is tied. After you have the pad and bed tied overcast the edges together and you will have a nice feather mattress almost as soft as a hair mattress.

Cough Caution

Never, positively never poison your lungs. If you cough—even from a simple cold only—you should always heal, soothe, and ease the irritated bronchial tubes. Don't blindly suppress it with a stupefying poison. It's strange how some things finally come about. For twenty years Dr. Shoop has constantly warned people not to take cough mixtures of prescriptions containing Opium, Chloroform, or similar poisons. And now—a little late though—Congress says "Put it on the label, if poisons are in your Cough Mixture." Good! Very good!! Hereafter for this very reason mothers, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's labels—and none in the medicine, else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance then, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and note the difference. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding

BRIEF MENTION

Short Items of Local Interest Gathered By The Way Side

—Mr. Thomas Beezer took a merry sled load to Unionville on Thursday evening.

—The county auditors are now hard at work auditing the accounts of the various county officers.

—In the Bellefonte hospital on Tuesday of last week Mrs. Edward Bullock became the mother of a ten pound baby boy.

—Just the nicest little girl baby imaginable made its appearance at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Chambers, on Wednesday.

—The friends of Miss Ella McClain will be pleased to learn that she is improving. Miss McClain has been suffering with typhoid fever for some time.

—Revival services at the United Brethren, United Evangelical, and Methodist Episcopal churches still continue. You are cordially invited to attend these meetings.

—The county and borough superintendents of the State will meet in the High School building at Harrisburg, on the 12th and 13th of February. The State School Directors Association will meet the same week at the same place.

—On Friday evening the Academy and Williamsport high school basket ball teams met on Y. M. C. A. gym floor. There was a fair crowd present and a fine game was witnessed. The score was 28—30 favor of the Academy.

—Just to show how well J. Calvin Vonada attends to his farm work, his neighbors say of him that in the four years he has lived on the Rishel farm, in Potter township, he has not been away from home for a single night, nor ridden on a railroad. That's a record.

—The many friends of Claude Thompson, the engineer on the Bellefonte shifter, will be sorry to learn that he is confined to his home with sickness, probably caused by exposure to the severe weather we have been having. His place is being filled by J. M. Rorabaugh, of Tyrone.

—Miss Ada Walshans, who the past three months has been manager of the Western Union telegraph office in this place, has resigned and last Friday left for her home in Lock Haven. She is succeeded by Howard Woodring, who came to Bellefonte from Ridgely, Maryland.

—Friday evening Mr. Clarence Bolton, the manager of the Academy basket ball team, and Miss Sue Donachy, had one of the swellest dinners ever given in this town in James Sommer's Cafe. A very nice feature of the dinner was the manner in which the room was decorated.

—A sled owned by McCalmont and Company and containing a load of hard coal, had the single-tree broken Friday morning. The single-tree was not very heavy and when Mr. Robert Savlor the driver went to drive across the bare spot in the road by the P. R. R. station it broke. No serious damage was done.

—The combination car to be used on the Bellefonte Central R. R. came over the P. & E. division on Wednesday evening. This is a very convenient car, is 70 feet long, speeded to 75 miles per hour on level track and was made in the New England states. It will be tested on the Bellefonte Central line as soon as possible. This car will undoubtedly prove satisfactory.

—The new auto tags for 1908 are being distributed as rapidly as possible. There have been issued nearly 3,000 tags since Dec. 19. Every operator of an automobile in the state is required to take out license, for which the state charges $3. The money thus received is used to pay the expenses of the auto division and for road experiments. Last year 20,000 licenses were issued.

—So lazy that he pulled the stairs into his bedroom with him each night to escape the early morning call of his hard-working wife, was the charge aired in Judge Adams' court, Cleveland, O., against her husband for neglect. "Why, Judge," she said, "when he goes to bed in the attic, he pulls up the ladder. That's the only stairway and when he pulls it up I can't wake him in the morning."

—On Wednesday afternoon at quarter of four just as the Lewisburg frieght was passing Griffith's a half mile this side of Axe Mann, a terrible wreck occured. The engine and six cars went over the embankment into the creek. Engineer Graeff, of Sunbury, was pinned under the engine in the creek and drowned. The fireman and several others were injured. Graeff was pinned down by one arm and all efforts to release the unfortunate man proved udavailing. This was his first run on this road. The cause of the accident is not definitely known. The ponp wheels of the engine left the track throwing the other cars off.

—Are you satisfied with your conduct thus far this year?

—Every citizen owes something to his city every day in the year.

—This is fine weather to get the grip. That's why so many people have it.

—Can you notice that the days are getting longer and the nights shorter?

—Some people seem to have no use for anything common—not even common sense.

—If you want the best groceries for the least money we can serve you. Sechler and Co.

—G. B. Coltz, of Tyrone, is filling the place of S. L. Fulton, car inspector of this place.

—A man gets a lot of credit for being a good husband—after the undertaker has him on ice

—If you are going to do any knocking this year, knock some other town; don't knock Bellefonte.

—Miss Corda Moore, of Howard, was discharged from the hospital Tuesday as being cured of typhoid fever.

—A merry crowd of young people from this place enjoyed a straw ride to the Workman home at Hecla Park Monday night.

—If you can't see an opportunity to lend a hand in building up your town, look up an oculist and purchase a pair of specks.

—Cheer up! If your winter's coal is nearly gone, just think how very glad you will make the coal dealer when you order more.

—Mrs. John Bower of Bishop street, who was operated on at the Bellefonte hospital on Monday is getting along very nicely.

—John Lutz, the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Lutz of Buffalo Run, is seriously ill with pneumonia at his parent's home.

—As a result of a lot of fighting and roughness among some of the men (?) of this vicinity, two fellows had to spend Sunday in the lockup.

—Hammond Sechler, of Bellefonte, has decided to be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for treasurer of Centre County at the April primaries.

—For various reasons, the Hospital Benefit to be given in the Court House on Friday evening, Jan. 17, has been postponed to Friday evening, Jan. 31, 1908.

—William E. Hurley of Philipsburg has made announcement to the effect that he has concluded to become a candidate for sheriff, of Centre county, subject to the rules and regulations governing the Republican party.

—Willis Wian and George Dickel, employed by the P. R. R. at the freight station were discharged the other day on account of hard times. The track men have also received a shorter day.

—R. B. Taylor, the Bellefonte coal dealer and State Road builder, has decided to be a candidate for the Republican nomination for the legislature at the April primaries. His announcement appears in this week's Bellefonte Republican.

—On Saturday evening the ladies of the United Evangelical church of Curtin will hold a chicken and waffle supper at the residence of Mrs. Henry Shultz, of that place. As refreshments they will have coffee, cake and ice cream. You are cordially invited to attend this supper.

—Mrs. Catherine Martin of New York, who was shot by her husband, Alfred Martin, in their apartments in a Brooklyn hotel last Saturday died on Monday. Martin died Saturday from a self-inflicted bullet wound. The double tragedy is said to have resulted from a suit for separation begun by the wife.

—In addition to the private car "Florencia" built expressly for the John W. Vogel's Big City Minstrels, and said to be the handsomest and costliest car ever constructed for a theatrical manager, the organization requires a special baggage car for the elaborate scenery, calcium and electrical effects which will be used in their performance at Garman's Opera House.

—Who would think that a bear would venture on the Glass Works Meadow? Well that is a fact. Monday morning a good sized bruin boldly walked into the Glass Works Meadow where several persons noticed it. A little later the bear took his departure traveling toward Point McCoy. Quite a little bit of excitement was caused by this unexpected incident and a number of persons are now after Mr. Bear.

—According to the reports of the agents who manage Mr. William Jennings Bryan's lecturing tours he filled 175 dates during the year 1907 at an average rate of recompense of $300 for each appearance. This would show total earnings of $50,000, taking no account of his emoluments as a farmer, lawyer and publisher. No wonder Mr. Bryan rejected the enticing offer of an Oklahoma United States Senatorship as a financial sacrifice he could not afford to make. The public leturer who stands next to Mr. Bryan as a winner of gate money is Maude Ballington Booth, but she devotes the money she earns to prison relief work, and is in no danger of taking rank among the predatory rich.

—The McSoley Brothers are freezing the sides and walls of Parrish's Drug Store.

—The total number of persons killed in the horrible disaster at Boyerstown is placed at about 175.

—There are thirty-six members in the John W. Vogel Minstrel. This is one of the best minstrels on the road.

—Mrs. Jane Brown of Howard street is not dead as was reported on Sunday, but is seriously ill, suffering from a general breakdown.

—Calvin Huss, of Spring Mills, is one of the men with John W. Vogel's Big City Minstrel which is coming to Bellefonte on January 22nd. Don't forget the date.

—Oscar B. Johnson, a well known colored resident of Philipsburg, died Tuesday morning after an illness of eight months, with sciatic rheumatism, and dropsy.

WANTED—In Bellefonte, next April, a good store room in good location for permanent shoe business. Address K. D. W., Main St., Towanda, Pa. Answer at once.

—One day last week Thomas Howley, of Bellefonte, filed his petition with the County Commissioners as a candidate for Recorder of Centre County on the Democratic ticket. There were 85 signers on the petition. Mr. Howley is at present Overseer of the Poor of Bellefonte boro.

—The game scheduled at the Y. M. C. A. gym for Friday night will be a fine one. The opposing teams are the State College Sophmores and our local team. Several hundred students are expected to be in attendance, and so, if you have any Y. M. C. A. blood in you come and help the boys along. The State team is a strong one and so is ours. Don't fail to secure tickets early.

—A. H. Rumberger, who has for some time been associated with the firm, has taken over the hardware business of R. R. Fleming & Co at Houtzdale, and will hereafter conduct the same under his own name. Mr. Rumberger is a practical business man, genial and accommodating, and having virtually had complete charge of the business for years, will be able to continue it on successful lines. A. H. Rumberger is a brother of our fellow townsman J. C. Rumberger.

Mass Meeting Sunday.

The men's meeting at the Court House Sunday, again proved to be a big success.

General James A. Beaver was the speaker, using for his subject "Following at The Head of The Procession."

The General stated that no man of himself was a leader, only a follower. The judge on the bench is not a leader but follows the prescribed laws. The governor of the state is not a leader but must be guided by the wishes of the people he serves. The merchant is not a leader but is governed by the demands of his customers. None of us can boast of independance, however it makes a difference as to when we follow, for we may be either at the head or the tail of the procession. To follow natural desires and tendencies is but to drop back to the rear, but to shun base things and to bear in mind and observe God's law though we may be followers we will head the procession.

An excellent musical program was carried out, lead by Christy Smith's orchestra. Charles O. Miller, the baritone singer of Tyrone sang twice, greatly pleasing the 175 men who were present. This is the third Court House meeting, so it is gratifying to report that the aggregate attendance of the three meetings is 520 men. It is expected that Judge Orvis will be the next speaker.

A Painful Accident.

George Eckley, an employee of the Bellefonte Central Railroad Co., met with a very painful, though not serious, accident. He had loosened the cylinder head on the new combination car, and intended marking it with a chisel. When he struck the chisel the cylinder head was blown off and a large quantity of steam and water poured forth, scalding his face, left arm, and the left side of his body. There are two valves on each side of the cylinder, used to blow out the steam and hot water, which should have been opened, and the steam and water would have been left out and the accident would not have happened. This accident might have been far more serious as the cylinder head was blown off with great force, the immense amount of steam and water which was in the tank having great pressure, but by good fortune no serious results followed.

MONUMENT TO BUCHANAN.

The Birthplace of Pennsylvania's Only President Has Been Marked.

A suitable monument has at last been erected on the sight of the birthplace of James Buchanan, the only president this state ever gave the nation.

It was 116 years ago that James Buchanan was born, near the village of Flotz in Franklin county, at a place called Stony Batter. Before the present monument was erected there was nothing about the cabin, in which the fifteenth president first saw the light of day, to indicate that it once sheltered the only son of the state who became the head of the nation.

By the will of Harriet Lane Johnson, of Washington, D. C., niece of President Buchanan and mistress of the White House during her uncle's term, a sum of money was set aside to erect a marker at her uncle's birthplace. The monument has been finished.

The marker is pyramidal in shape, 31 feet high and 38 feet square. The body of the monument is composed of native stones showing the weather marks, many being covered with moss. The stones are set in cement, of which over 300 car loads were used. The inscription plate and seat are made of hammered American gray granite. The plate is 6x2½ feet and the letters are three inches high. The inscription is as follows:

"This monument marks the birthplace of James Buchannon, fifteenth president of the United States. Born April 23, 1791. Died June 1, 1868.

The monument stands near the cabin in which President Buchanan was born. The country round about is wild and has not changed greatly since the time the president as a boy, played in the mountains. The monument will be inclosed by a neat iron fence and the ground inside will be graded and sodded for a distance of 50 feet.

Death of Mrs. A. F. Markle.

Emma, wife of Abram F. Markle, died Tuesday morning about one o'clock, after a lingering illness of several months. Mrs. Markle would have been 62 years old had she lived until Thursday. She is survived by her husband and three sons.

Mrs. Markle had been a prominent member of the State College Presbyterian church for a number of years, taking an active part in all church work.

Funeral services were held at the residence on East College avenue Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, the Rev W. Harnish, of Lemont, officiating. Interment was made at the Branch cemetery.
